Outstanding Research Contributions
by a Ph.D. Student

A Research Prize of 1500 € donated by Evonik Industries, will be awarded for outstanding research contributions by a Ph.D. student in Chemistry or Chemical Engineering at the Tag der Fakultät für Chemie on July 25, 2014. With this prize, we will recognize scientifically excellent research of a Ph.D. student in the chemistry department, documented by publications or patents in the following research areas:

- Industrial Biotechnology
- Catalysis (heterogeneous, homogeneous)
- Drug Delivery Materials
- High-Performance Polymers / Smart Materials
- Energy Materials (battery materials)

Eligible candidates are Ph.D. students whose dissertation has not been completed before the end of May 2014 and are anticipated to obtain their degree by the summer of 2015.

The required application documents include a one-page nomination letter, a curriculum vitae, copies of the up to three most important publications, and a copy of the student's Master/Diploma transcript. Postdoctoral fellows, habilitands, wissenschaftliche Räte, or professors may submit nominations to Veronika Pichler (veronika.pichler@tum.de) by May 31, 2014. The winner of the prize is required to attend the ceremony at the Tag der Fakultät.

The award committee, consisting of Sabine Schneider (sabine.schneider@mytum.de), Mirza Cokoja (mirza.cokoja@ch.tum.de), Hubert Gasteiger (hubert.gasteiger@tum.de), and Dr. Georg Oenbrink from Evonik Industries AG will announce its selection on June 25, 2014. The prize will be awarded to the winner by Dr. Oenbrink at the Tag der Fakultät.
